FROM TONGA BISHOP

Willis Writes To The Independent Of His Work.

The Independent, the former organ of Bishop Willis in the secular field, prints the following interesting letter from him:

My Dear Friends:
It was on my way from Honolulu to Nukualofa, more than six months ago, that I wrote my final letter regarding the work of the Anglican Church in the Hawaiian Islands, which on April 1st, 1902, became a Missionary Jurisdiction of the American branch of our communion.

Now, after six months' experience of the work to which I was called, when no longer wanted in Hawaii, I venture for two reasons to put before you a brief sketch of the conditions that have to be met in planting the Anglican Church in the Tongan group of Islands; first, because I doubt not that many who have been interested in promoting the advance of the Anglican Church in the North Pacific will not be less interested in the work of laying foundations in a group of Islands in the South Pacific; and, secondly, because the internal resources—which will, I believe, in time suffice for the maintenance of the Anglican Church in Tonga when once firmly established—are inadequate to meet all the expenses that the beginning of a Mission necessarily entails, of building and printing, as well as maintenance, so that a special fund becomes a necessity.

First of all, it needs to be earnestly impressed upon the Church at home that, east of Fiji, our own branch of the Church provides no ministrations whatever, either for native or settler, throughout this vast region British influence in predominant, the commerce is in British hands, and the English language is spoken. Whilst Imperial interests are looked after carefully enough, there has been no corresponding zeal to provide for the spiritual needs of the Isles that stud the ocean.
Requests that have been made during the last quarter of a century to the Church at home for the ministrations of an ordained ministry have been pigeon holed and neglected, and it would almost seem as if in some quarters the Western Pacific were regarded as excluded from the great commission to go into all the world.

This being the case, I was not unprepared for the coldness and want of sympathy with which the present humble effort to wipe away this reproach is being viewed in its inception by some who ought to be the first to support it. But I am sure that there are many who will rejoice, and will gladly extend a helping hand to this venture of faith.
In 1897, on my way to the Lambeth Conference, I spent a day in Nukua-lofa, the capital of the Tongan kingdom, and held a confirmation, those confirmed being British, American, and Hawaiian nationality. Through this circumstance, I was not unknown in Tonga, and it was known also that I held a commission from the Bishop of London, under whose jurisdiction all British subjects in the Pacific were supposed to be.

It was on this account that, at the end of 1901, a number of chiefs and others in Nukualofa addressed a letter to me (which I received in January, 1902), praying me to come over and help them. Coming as it did, when my work in Hawaii was drawing to a close, I could not but regard that letter as a direct call to be obeyed without delay.
The movement from which that letter derived its inspiration having been represented as purely political in its origin, arising out of the jitting of Ofa by the King of Tonga, let me say that such a statement has just as much truth in it as the statement that used to be made by shallow people that Henry VIII's divorce was the cause of the Reformation. The divorce was a factor in a movement, the springs of which lay far deeper. And here in Tonga, the King's rejection of Ofa served to add strength to a movement which, in itself, was quite independent of it.
To the Wesleyan body belongs the honour of having introduced Christianity into Tonga, and of having translated the Old and New Testaments (not the Apocrypha) into the Tongan language. But no one would ever learn from reading Holy Scripture in the Tonga version that "from the Apostles" time there have been "these Orders of Ministers in Christ's Church: Bishops, Priests, and Deacons." The belief carefully inculcated in the Tongan mind by their teachers is that the Wesleyan body is the true representative of the Church of Christ from the beginning. Having no history, no literature other than the Wesleyan translation of the Bible, the Tongans had no means of arriving at the truth. It is not the policy of Wesleyanism in its missionary work, any more than it was the policy of Rome in the middle ages, to let in too much light.

In 1885 there were internal dissensions among the Wesleyan leaders, which led to the creation of the "Wesleyan Free Church of Tonga," which became the State Church. It was the creature of the State, the term "Free" being adopted to signify that it was free from the control of the Wesleyan Conference in Sydney. But so far from being "free," coercive measures were employed by its author, the Rev. Shirley W. Baker, sometime Wesleyan missionary, and at this time Premier of King George Tubou I, and practically King himself, to force the whole nation into it. Many who refused to join were flogged, many were banished to Fiji. It is surprising that the Tongans should have begun to question whether it could be the true Church of Jesus Christ that was planted amongst them? It would be well for those who today question the propriety of the Anglican church entering into Tonga to consider that the "Free Church of Tonga," the largest religious organization in the kingdom, is a religious body having no connection with any other religious body under the sun.
The head of it is the Rev. Mr. Watkin, who was Dr. Baker's right-hand man in its formation. There is no other white man among its ministers, so that it is doubtful whether it can long continue beyond the life time of Mr.
Watkin. In providing for the worship of his Free Church, Dr. Baker borrowed largely from the Prayer-book of the Church of England.

It was in January, 1887, when he was at the zenith of his power, that an attempt was made on Dr. Baker's life by a son and daughter who were driving with him being severely wounded by the bullets intended for him. They both recovered. For this offence four natives were condemned to death and shot. In 1890, Dr. Baker was deported from Tonga by the High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, Sir John Thurston.
Returning to Tonga in 1899, he endeavoured to obtain the appointment of head of the National church in Tonga.
Failing in this he gave out that during his absence in Auckland he had become a clergyman of the Church of England. He commenced holding services at Lifuka in the Haabai group in September, and in Nukualofa in November. In both places he had large congregations of natives. Hoping to obtain Episcopal recognition, he entered into correspondence with me at Honolulu. My reply did not give him the satisfaction he desired, and our correspondence dropped. His letters showed how ready the people were to welcome the Church of England. It had been said to me in 1897 by an old resident of Nukualofa, that the religious future of Tonga must be either the Church of England or the Sela-vation Army. The following that Dr. Baker had obtained gave hopes of what might be done under proper leadership. Dr. Baker's career as a clergyman of the church of England was destined to be of short duration. In the autumn of 1901 a marriage of a British subject solemnized by him according to the rites of the Church of England, was declared invalid by the British Consul, the officiant not being registered in the High Commissioner's Court. This opened the eyes of the natives, and finding they had been imposed upon, they withdrew from Dr.
Baker almost to a man, and both in Nukualofa and Lifuka found fresh places in which to carry on their worship.

A BAD JAP CROOK
NOW IN CUSTODY
The police believe that they now have under lock and key at the police station at least one of the men who robbed the Swain residence some time ago, and it is suspected that the man, who is a Jap, has been concerned in other robberies as well. It is an unusual thing for a Japanese to go into the business of burglarizing as thoroughly as the man they have in custody has done, and the police are gratified in getting hold of what may turn out to be a dangerous crook. The man was captured by C. Schoelkopf, who is a agent for some of Dr. McGrew's houses on Beretania street, and who has been living alone in the Swain residence for some time past. This house has been robbed so often that the occupants finally moved out.
Schoelkopf has been on the watch for burglars as several times on visiting the houses under his care he has found the locks of the doors pried open.
Wednesday evening about midnight he was aroused by his watch dog barking, and he arose and made a search, and although no one seemed to be around he noticed that a side window was opened, which he was sure he had closed earlier in the evening.
About four o'clock he was again aroused by his dog's barking and this time he went outside and walked around the house to the side yard. Suddenly two men ran from the shadow of the house and jumped the fence into the next yard. Schoelkopf hurried around on Punchbowl street as he thought the men were making for a hole in the fence there. No one was in sight, however so he returned to the house and found that he could not unlock either the front or the back door with his keys. Assured that something was going on he now broke in the rear door and saw two men standing close to the wall, as if they hoped to escape being seen in the darkness. When the watchman ordered the men out, one of them who was a big fellow made a rush and shoving Mr. Schoelkopf aside got away. However the watchman caught the smaller man who was brought to the police station and held for investigation.
The Jap, who gave the name of Ishi-moto, looks to be a thoroughly bad man. He is small and according to the police has a crook's face. He has already confessed to the police to having visited the Swain residence before and to have been in several other robberies. The police hope to force him to tell more and also to give information as to who his companion in the recent robbery was.

SEA AND SHORE
NIPPON MARU CAME LAST EVENING

The S. S. Nippon Maru arrived from San Francisco late yesterday afternoon and docked at the Bishop wharf shortly after 6 o'clock. The Nippon Maru experienced pleasant weather throughout the trip, and nothing was sighted save the Coptic, which vessel was passed two days ago. When the big steamer was in San Francisco she was given an overhauling and some improvements were made, especially in the first cabin saloon. These quarters have been newly upholstered in red plush and add much to the general interior appearance of the vessel. The Nippon Maru has about sixty cabin passengers and sixteen lay-overs for this port, an unusually large number. The Maru brought 268 bags of mail.

Among the lay-overs are five Yale graduates who are on a tour of the world.
Among the through passengers is Mrs. S. C. Partridge, the wife of the Episcopal Bishop of Japan. She passed through Honolulu several weeks ago on the Nippon Maru, and is making the round trip with the steamer.

Mrs. Frederick C. O'Brien is going to Manila to join her husband who is managing editor of the Manila Cable News. Mrs. J. S. Van Buren is the wife of the former agent of the Pacific Mail at Hongkong, and is returning to that port to join her husband who is now agent for the new China Commercial line. Mrs. Van Buren has but recently recovered from a very severe illness at San Francisco.
Mrs. C. H. Smith is the wife of the prosecuting attorney of Manila. She is returning to the Philippines after a trip to the mainland.
Dr. and Mrs. H. Salomon are on a tour of the world. Dr. Salomon is the German Health officer at Coblenz and is a very distinguished practitioner.
Mr. Archibald McKillop who stops over at this port is a well known liquor dealer and connected with the prominent San Francisco firm of Lillenthal & Co.

There are some fifteen government officials and teachers bound for Manila on the Nippon Maru.
The steamer will sail for the Orient at 11 o'clock this morning.

WAS GLAD TO LEAVE THE PORT

Captain Barton started the whistle going on the Clavering yesterday as that vessel went out of the harbor and kept it going until he was satisfied that people on shore knew what he was glad to leave this port. But there were five others on the vessel who were not wreathed in smiles and they were the luckless Chinamen who tried to escape from the Clavering the other night. They were taken to the wharf in the patrol wagon and didn't look overjoyed at the prospect of seeing the captain. When the steamer went out of the harbor the Celestials were handcuffed to the rail, and Captain Barton's intention was to keep them fastened there until this morning when he would hold a private seance with each particular Chinaman. So taken all in all the Chinese do not look forward to an enjoyable trip to the Coast.

May Bu Rosecrans
A foreign steamer supposed to be the oil carrying steamer Rosecrans arrived and anchored off port last evening.
She brings 23,000 barrels of crude oil in her tanks. This is the Rosecrans's first visit here as a merchant steamer.
Once before she passed through this port but she was a government transport, then. The Rosecrans had her bow punctured by floating ice on June 24 when the vessel was in the Behring Sea.

The transport Sheridan is due to arrive from San Francisco tomorrow sometime. She will have a day's later mail and newspapers than the Nippon Maru brought.

Little Portuguese Thieves.
There has been a great deal of petty thieving lately in the Kaimuki tract and yesterday Detective McDuffie succeeded in getting hold of a small Portuguese boy who confessed to having stolen two cuff studs valued at $15 from a residence in the tract. There are several boys who have been doing the robbing and in due course of time they will probably all be rounded up.

sor-grinder ever pass your house?"

MYSTERIOUS STABBING AFFRAY

A curious stabbing affray occurred in a room of the new building at the corner of River and Hotel street last night.
Officer Espinda was informed by Japanese that a countryman of theirs had been stabbed. He went to the room and found a Japanese who was severely wounded and bleeding profusely.
The man was taken to the Queen's Hospital for treatment and policemen were sent out to find his assailant. It is said that a woman witnessed the stabbing.

GAVE THE OTHER SIDE NO CHANCE

The principal case on the police court docket yesterday was that of Ah Choy charged with selling lottery tickets and aiding and abetting a gambling game. Before the case had proceeded very far, Magistrate Davis announced to the attorneys present that it would be impossible to obtain a conviction on the evidence offered, and instructed that the charge against the Chinaman be changed so that he could be tried on the charge of having che fa tickets in his possession. Davis then took matters in his own hands, and got most of the testimony himself. When the Chinaman's lawyer, Mr. S. F. Chil-lingworth, rose to begin his side of the case the Judge interrupted him with remark that he had heard enough already and that his mind was made up on the case. Without allowing Chil-lingworth an opportunity to plead for his man, he sentenced him to a fine of $250 and costs.
